

SUMMIT PERSPECTIVE

IN SEARCH OF PERSPECTIVE

The year 2020 will go down in history as a defining moment for mankind. The coronavirus pandemic has touched every corner of the globe, and after months of disruption and many lives lost, the nightmarish story isn't finished. In the years ahead, books will be written, and classes will be taught about the worldwide phenomenon that stopped us in our tracks. They will seek to answer questions such as, "How could this happen?," "Who is at fault?," and "How can we handle it better the next time?" In short, everyone will be searching for perspective as we try to make sense of the unbelievable.

Perspective might be the most valuable commodity of our time. Despite a digital world where almost all the information that exists can be obtained on demand, it is almost impossible to gain perspective amid the noise. It seems everyone has an angle, a spin, or a worldview that they are pressing upon you via video soundbites or social media posts. When is the last time you saw a rational debate that didn't involve hashtags, comments, or name calling? It's enough to make you want to turn off your devices and escape for a while.

As advisors, we view it as our calling to bring perspective as it relates to your financial life. In a world designed to provoke reaction, we make it our mission to see the big picture, consider the long term, and avoid emotional responses. We read reputable sources, use one another as sounding boards, and we seek the counsel of experts. It's this process that leads to the sound and researched advice clients have come to rely on from Summit advisors. With the coming Presidential Election, the economic havoc wrought by the pandemic, and civil unrest sweeping our nation, perspective is going to be more valuable than ever.

This year, our perspective has taken a virtual bent. Social distancing pushed us to embrace digital technology. As a result, we have hosted dozens of webinars since shelter-in-place was initiated. We will continue to offer consistent and insightful programming going forward, so stay tuned in the months ahead.

Our Summit Symposium is going virtual this year as well. Instead of one amazing day at a winery this winter, we are hosting a virtual series of spectacular speakers that will allow us to reach a larger online audience. Our Summit Symposium Series kicks off on October 15th with Reagan Anderson, Senior VP of Government Relations at Capital Group. Reagan is a fixture on Capitol Hill and has insider insight into all things Washington D.C. With the election and Supreme Court decisions in the offing, her perspective is timely.

In November, we welcome Dr. Ann Kulze, author of Eat Right for Life. She is a health and wellness expert and one of the most highly rated speakers from our Summit Symposium over the years. For those of us who put on the COVID-19 lbs. during quarantine, her message will be especially appropriate.

In the New Year, we welcome our favorite economist, Emory University's Jeff Rosensweig. With the election mania over, and hopefully some vaccines in production, his perspective on the economy is can't-miss material. We are grateful to Jeff for making time for our clients despite his hectic schedule. The way he covers the Cristina: I will be donating my Summit Spirit Award to Trips for Kids Marin in memory of our son, Ryan. He was a lifetime cyclist mostly for recreation but competed in local downhill mountain bike races. Cycling was his passion since he was old enough to sit on a bike. Ryan had special needs and cycling taught him confidence, determination, strength and a sense of freedom. Trips for Kids Marin's mission is to provide transformative cycling experiences for underserved youth. They aim to build self-esteem, inspire healthy lifestyles and instill environmental values. I hope that all kids (young and old) learn to ride a bike and enjoy all the benefits it has to offer. Ride in Paradise, Ryan!

MUSTANG LOVE: HARDY AND TRISH BRUNETTE

This love story begins with a 1967 Mustang Coupe.

It belonged to Summit client Hardy Brunette's parents. He was 15 when they bought it. Hardy took his driver's test in the car when he turned 16 in 1968. It was a momentous moment for the teenager. Little did he know later that year he would drive the car to pick up the girl of his dreams for their first date – a girl who would eventually become his wife and the mother of their twin boys.

The story doesn't end there. Being the parents of four children, Hardy's mom and dad soon realized the sports car wasn't working for their family of six. "I don't know why my parents thought buying a 2-door Mustang was a good idea," says Hardy. "They had four kids. They should have had a van." They sold the car to an employee, a mechanic named Duane who worked for the couple's transportation business. Hardy loved the car and asked Duane to reach out to him if he ever wanted to sell it.

Fast forward 50 years. Guess who calls Hardy? That's right, Duane. He was ready to sell. Hardy and Trish jumped at the chance. They took ownership of the car in September of 2019 and began lovingly restoring it to its original condition. They finished the project in July (a great way to pass the time during quarantine). For you car buffs, the engine is original and has logged 238,000 miles!

The couple, who have now been married for 47 years, are thrilled to have the car back in their possession. After all, it's where their courtship began. Their first date occurred on November 23, 1968. "People laugh that I remember the date, but there's a reason," says Trish. "It was our first date, but it was my first date ever! He's the first boy I ever dated." It was also the day of her aunt's birthday. As Hardy and Trish drove away down the lane of the country road where she lived in their hometown of Newman, CA, they passed her aunt's house. "I didn't know what to say when we were driving so my most profound first comment on our date was, 'Today is my Aunt Agnes' birthday!' That was my icebreaker!"

She was also nervous about riding in the car with a boy. She wasn't sure if she was supposed to sit next to him in the front seat or if she should sit nearest the window. She was relieved when her youngest sister proclaimed it was a mustang coming down the lane because she knew those had bucket seats!

They went to the movies. Neither of them remembers what they saw, but they do remember sharing an Almond Joy candy bar. They were high school sweethearts but spent time apart to attend college. Trish stayed in California and went to nursing school and Hardy went to SMU in Dallas. They married in '73. Six years later their twins were born.

The Brunettes haven't been able to take the car on any road trips yet because of COVID restrictions but they hope to cruise over to the seaside to visit Santa Cruz and Pescadero once everything starts to open. They have managed to drive it to local wineries for a few dates and over to Newman to show it to Duane, who is now in his 80s. "He was so excited! He loved it," says Trish.

Happy trails, Brunettes! Summit wishes you many adventurous years together on the road exploring new destinations!
